Probers seek out suspect's friend

Inspector Timothy Dowd, who heads the investigation, was among those who came to check on the new lead, according to the youth.

According to the youth, who is a pre-veterinary student, Berkowitz said little during the visit, but played happily with the dog who apparently took a liking to him.

He described the friend with Berkowitz', as being about the same age, but with a wiry body, muscular shoulders, and light brown hair that fell over the right side of his forehead in a style similar to an earlier police sketch of the suspected .44-caliber killer.

The youth said he didn't realize that one of them might be Berkowitz until he received a call on Thursday from a woman in a volunteer animal agency who said she received a call from Berkowitz earlier in the week and referred him to the Mamaroneck shelter, located at 649 W. Boston Post Road.

Florence Larsen, of the Bronx-based organization People for Animal Welfare, said Berkowitz called her about the dog, apparently in response to a classified ad that appeared in The Herald Statesman.

Mrs. Larsen said she copies Berkowitz' name and address on a piece of paper and then forgot about him until she heard of his arrest.

She added that she threw the piece of paper away after hearing about Berkowitz and said to her husband "he'll never be allowed to adopt a dog.

"I mentioned it (the call) to the animal shelter and they said two people showed up to see the shepherd — whose name is Big Boy.

According to the youth at the animal shelter, the man wit Berkowitz seemed disappointed when he discovered that the dog was not a pure bred shepherd and expressed reluctance about the extensive background checks that persons wishing to adopt animals are asked to undergo. Both men left after about 20 minutes without making any commitment, the youth said.

Berkowit, who is now undergong psychiatric treatment in Kings County Hospital, has been linked with dogs in several contexts.

Yonkers police have connected him with the shooting on April 11 of a dog owned by a neighbor, Sam Carr of 316 Warburton Ave., who police say Berkowitz never knew personally, but had adopted as a father figure.

A former landlord of Berkowitz's Mrs. Nann Cassara of New Rochelle, said Berkowitz moved out of a room he was renting at her home last year because he disliked her dogs.

And Berkowitz reportedly told police that he received commands to kill by way of a talking dog.

Settlement ends short phone strike

By EVELYN SHORT
Staff Writer

A strike by New York Telephone Co. employes throughout the state was cut short early Sunday morning when the seven unions representing telephone workmen agreed on a settlement.

Barbara Shashy, spokeswoman for the telephone company in New York City, said the company's largest union, the Communications Workers of America (CWA), settled its contract talks with company officials at about 7 a.m.

The settlement with the CWA, a union representing approximately 32,000 repairmen, phone installers and craftsmen, ended a brief strike by employes who threatened to picket when negotiations were not settled as of midnight Saturday. The statewide union represents about 2,200 workers in Westchester and Putnam counties.

MRS. SHASHY said service was returned to normal and employes were told to return to work shortly after the settlement. She said picketers who set up picket lines at various telephone officers around the state disbanded after early-morning word that the settlement was reached.

Mrs. Shashy would not disclose details of the contract settlements because she said none of the unions nor the telephone company had formally ratified the tentative agreements, but said those details would be made available later this week. All contract settlements are subject to formal approval on Sept. 16.

Mrs. Shashy said two other unions, one representing accounting employes and the other representing commercial and traffic employes, settled individual contracts with the company at about 10 a.m. Sunday.

Those two independent unions represent some 900 upstate employes and 3,000 employes from the New York metropolitan area including White Plains.

THE BELL System, which includes New York Telephone, reached a wage settlement with the union last week that calls for a 30 per cent hike over three years for 700,000 employes nationwide.

Thirty-nine union locals then began intensive negotiations with Bell System subsidiaries over purely local issues.

Kidnaper wanted dress, $17

NEW YORK (AP) — A 12-year-old girl has been charged with kidnaping a 5-year-old boy and demanding $17 and a new dress in ransom.

She was captured Sunday, with the boy in tow and unharmed, as she allegedly awaited the ransom delivery on a subway platform.

The girl, not identified because of her age, had been a baby-sitter for the boy, Hasan Brown of Manhattan. Police said that last Thursday she lured him away from a group of day-care children who were being taken by subway on a field trip.

Police said the girl took Hasan to the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay of Brooklyn, where he played with his former baby-sitter and two of her friends, aged 13 and 15.

Mrs. Lindsay's relationship with the girl was not made clear by police.

Police said that when the friends saw a television report on the missing boy, the 15-year-old suggested that the boy be returned to his family.

Instead, police said, the 12-year-old called Hasan's home and told the neighbor who answered to be at the Fulton Street subway station in lower Manhattan with the new dress and the $17.

The boy's family notified police, who went to the subway station and found the girl with Hasan.

The girl was charged with second degree kidnaping and held for an appearance in Family Court. Mrs. Lindsay was charged with unlawful imprisonment and criminal facilitation.

Forest fires ravaging drought-stricken West

By The Associated Press

The drought-stricken forests of the West continued to be hit by fire over the weekend, with the two-week-old Marble-Cone blaze on California's central coast remaining the major undefeated adversary.

Almost 10,000 persons are currently involved in fighting blazes in California, which has had scores of forest fires this summer.

The Marble-Cone blaze now covers about 123,000 acres in the Los Padres National Forest. Part of the blaze is about eight miles from homes in the Carmel Valley. Contingency evacuation plans have been made, but officials say there was no concern that the blaze would spread to the homes.

In western Colorado, the Deep Creek fire in the White River National Forest remained out of control today after charring 3,850 acres. About 400 firefighters battled that blaze. A fire line was set up two-thirds of the way around the Deep Creek blaze.

Two fires in the same forest — the 590 acre Brook Creek fire and the 1000-acre Meadow Creek blaze —were still burning today, but were declared under control.

A wind-driven brush fire burned out of control in northeastern Washington, consuming more than 150 acres of brush and grass in the Colville National Forest.

Over 100 firefighters, with support from helicopters and tanker airplanes, battled the fire Sunday night. Addtional crews were expected at the fire line today.

In central Oregon, the 1,800 acre Green Buttes fire was brought under control Sunday in the Deschutes National Forest.

The Forest Service used seven miles of fire line, 410 firefighters, 16 tankers and 11 bulldozers to stop the fire.

During the weekend, the 45-acre Skellock fire in the Winema National Forest and the 70-acre Chick Two blaze in the nearby Fremont National Forest were stopped. Both were in central Oregon.

Berkowitz faces indictment

New York City police are continuing to perform ballistics tests on the 44-caliber revolver found in Berkowitz's possession in an effort to link it to the five other slayings and four other woundings attributed to the "Son of Sam."

The police said Sunday that the gun has already been linked to the shooting of Judy Placido and Sal Lupo in Bayside, Queens on June 26.

The district attorneys in Queens and the Bronx are also expected to seek indictments for the shootings in those boroughs, both for second-degree murder and attempted murder. First degree murder can only be charged in the slaying of a police officer or correction guard.

Psychiatrists said Sunday that their examination of Berkowitz is "progressing on schedule." The suspect is being held under tight security at the same hospital where Miss Moskowitz died, and where Violante, who was nearly blinded in the attack, is recuperating.

Police say the Son of Sam also has killed five other persons an wounded six more in a year-long spree.

IN OTHER developments: A lawyer claiming to represent Berkowitz and to have tape-recorded conversations with the suspect offered to sell transcripts to The Daily News for $50,000 and The New York Post for $100,000. Both papers refused the offer.

Court officials are investigating how the attorney, Philip Peltz became involved in the case.Peltz served three months in jail in 1971 after his conviction in a stock fraud case on four felony courts, including providing the services of a prostitute.

— WILLIAM B. Spahn Jr., president of the American Bar Association called Peltz' attempt to sell the tapes "on the edge of ethicality." Spahn, appearing on the CBS program "Face the Nation" said: "I don't know why they have prmitted a convicted felon to continue practice."

— THE suspect's father, Nathan Berkowitz, spent about an hour with his adopted son on Saturday.

Earlier Saturday, the elder Berkowitz told a news conference, "I would like to say to all those families that have lost children and have had children injured, I deeply grieve for you with all my heart."

Off-duty officer held in shooting

NEW YORK (AP) —Police say an off-duty Englewood Cliffs, N.J. policeman fired four or five shots at a Port Authority policeman Sunday night. There were no injuries.

Police said Warren Carlstedt, 33, of Rivervale N.J., was arrested shortly after the incident, which took place about 11:30 p.m. outside St. Clair's Hospital in midtown Manhattan. Carlstedt approached Officer Zadrick Coffino of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey police as Coffino was getting into his patrol car, police said. Coffino had just completed a shift at the hospital, where he was assigned to guard a patient.

Carlstedt, a policeman on the Englewood Cliffs, N.J., force, fired four or five shots at Coffino at close range, but missed each time, according to police.

Police said they were not immediately able to determine a motive for the shooting since both denied knowing each other and refused to comment further.

Carlstedt was charged with attempted murder and a violation of the state's weapons law, police said, adding that the gun used in the shooting was recovered. They said they did not know whether the gun was Carlstedt's service revolver.

A number of witnesses saw the shooting, police said, but no one was hurt. One policeman said Carlstedt was "either just trying to scare him or a bad shot."
